[Redacted]

- In 1950 all civilian building in Rumania was stopped. All cement and iron available were used for military constructions only. A special military organization, the Higher Labor Council, was made responsible for providing the necessary manpower for military construction work. All soldiers unfit for active duty were transferred to special working units.
- A military airfield in the Baragan district with subterranean hangars and one surfaced runway has been constructed. This runway was completed at the end of 1950. This airfield was specially constructed for jet lighters. The surfaced runway was built of large concrete slabs in layers of unknown thickness. The slabs, though closely fitted and joined with tar, are "coming loose" continually from the pressure of plane wheels. It is planned to surface the runways with aluminum "on the American plan."
- The construction of "numerous" ammunition depots is taking place near Focsani.
